

MB-2 Network Video Server

How to select the right version of User Guide

For each video server modification there is a separate packet of user documentation. In order to determine the model of your device, and select the right documents, pay attention to the following information:

1. Label on the package or on the housing:

The label contains information on the hardware: its revision, serial number, etc. When there is no label on the housing or package, see the next point.

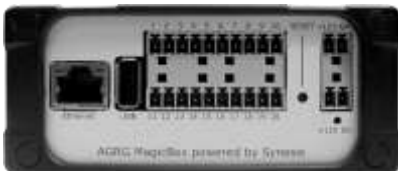

2. Connectors in the back panel of the video server:
